HONGKONG, DECEMBER 23RD, 1888.

A cricket match, Hongkong Cricket Club v. 55th Regiment, will be commenced this afternoon at two o'clock.

The Agents (Messrs. Jardine, Matheson & Co.) inform us that the Gas Line stammer (Hannover, New York), left Singapore on Wednesday for this port.

The Post Office will be closed on New Year's Day. The post mail for Europe closes at 3 p.m. on Monday, and money orders intended for Wednesday's mail must be applied for before 5 p.m. on Monday.

It is announced—amongst the respectable class of natives, says the Hongkong Standard, that China will never Korea after the Emperor of Manchuria, and the present King and all his family will be deported, and that Marquis Taeung will be appointed as Viceroy of Korea.

The Marquis of Lansdowne's arrival in Calcutta was preceded by a non-signature of sixty cases of Scotch whisky to his address. The local papers are silent on the circumstances surrounding his departure with this cargo, but it is known that he was seen in the shadow before, and remarks that the new Viceroy's shadow had come in a somewhat substantial form.

The Standard says:—Several influential Chinese merchants are dubious of the intention of the Government in formulating a Bill to have the members of firms registered. They consider such a proceeding unnecessary, and indicative of a probable tax on the shop-keepers; and we believe individual representations have been made to this effect to certain non-official members of the Legislative Council.

The Foochow Echo says:—The natives are grumbling bitterly at the dearness of all articles of food, which are daily rising in price, and they say that the taikin and the enormous queues to buy it are the cause of it. If the authorities will not take steps and put a stop to the unfair dealing of the taikin-runners, we fear some trouble may arise similar to that which took place in Formosa lately, caused by squeezing.

News.

At Chiang-men, on the 21st, snow fell. The house of the Hai Tang Tea, contrary to Buddhistic rite, takes a wife, and shortly afterwards a number two to his home. The number one therupon runs away. Meeting her some time after in the street he seized her, and to the questions of the inquisitive bystanders replies that he had married her before he had joined the church.

A doctor who called to visit a boatman's family alleges that for the concoction of the medicine it would be necessary to have some articles made of gold to boil in the water. The articles were produced, and the wily quack changed them for false ones carrying the gold ones away. His trick was however, detected too late.

At Fok-lo a sugar shop fell, burying one man, who sustained considerable injury.

Two women at Hui-chow carried on their persons a good many articles of jewellery. Some sharpers, attracted by the bait, drugged them and deprived them of all the ornaments on their persons and their persons.

The profession of steeling seems to be so numerous in Shai-ching that even a lot of women have embraced it. During a procession lately held in that place several of these female thieves were detected, arrested, and caugth.

A Hainan passenger boat attacked by pirates, an unfortunate passenger being carried away.

Over at Hui-nan a barber's shop is the scene of a robbery. The wily thief, knowing that the taipan and watchman are responsible, thought to report the occurrence unless steps were promptly taken to discover the culprit. The new judge, like every broom that sweeps clean, is making a raid on lotteries. A prosecution issued by him prohibits the pack-pot.

A bear brought down for sale measuring four feet in length. The price asked is $50.

Third Day, Wednesday, 19th December.
The leading article of the Kwang-pao of this day dwells on the course followed by His Majesty the Emperor to the Board of Revenue to consider whether the proposed made by Fung Chang-chien as to several alterations to be effected in the system now in force of purchasing official rank should be adopted or rejected. The Board recommends that no changes should be introduced, and that the existing regulations for the collection of funds for repairs to the Yellow River should remain in force.

A new system of raising money has been recourse to by the Magistrate at Yang-chang. This official has a new temple raised, and in lieu of

The Ching-pao at Kowloon has fallen. Rewards amounting to $200 are offered for the arrest of a notorious robber at Ching-men.

THE FOOCHEW RACES.

The Ching-pao Times has been taking the opinion of some of the leading Chinese merchants of Singapore on the proposed racing system. The merchants are in favour of the proposed system, but the taikin society should be done away with. Its idea was that the headman should be promptly presented. This would be the breaking up of the whole system, as the general membership of these societies are like sheep, and only follow the leader. He further said that in Dutch Colonies and in Siam, these Societies were not allowed, and he could see no reason why they should not be done away with.

Another leading Chinese merchant said that he had no objection to doing away with the taikin system, but the Chinese were still the taikin of the taikin system, and that they came here from China like the societies, as they looked after them when they were sick and advanced them money. Still there was doubt that they did much harm and caused fighting and even murder, and if suppressed, it would be better to do so.

Spectators at first laughed when one man only was hoisted on the telegraph board, but when they found that was the real state of the case their feelings may be more easily imagined than described by our feeble pen. There was one general murmur of indignation! The following are results of the events:—

FIRST DAY, Monday, 17th December.

The Race Meeting which took place at Peacock on the 17th, 18th, and 19th December will be remembered by foochow and any visitors who may have been present. The weather was wet on the first day, quite moist on the second, and on the third it was simply excellent; still, some racing. Races were very like sheep, and only follow the leader.

These other prominent men, who were not in favour of the proposed system, but who had no objection in general to it, were the taikin society, who were still in favour of doing away with the taikin system, but the Chinese were still the taikin of the taikin system, and that they came here from China like the societies, as they looked after them when they were sick and advanced them money. LORD LINDSEY'S PROGRESS TOWARDS THE POLE.

WINNIPEG (Man.) 26th November. James Carter, one of the Hudson Bay Company's chief factors in the Arctic circle, arrived here yesterday from the most northerly point to which he has travelled with three Esquimaux guides and one personal attendant.

His English servant had left him three weeks before. He was pushing northward as rapidly as possible. He walks all day and displays such remarkable endurance that the natives refer to him as "the man who walks fast." It is even his guides out.

He is only of being able, in his simplest mode of travelling, of reaching the North Pole, if his attendants would stick to him. He said that at least he would perish farther north than any white man had ever gone. He was in good health, though he said he was sure he was not nearly so fat as when he started. He is an excellent shot and has secured numberless specimens of birds and beasts of the isolated country through which he is prospecting.

He is one of the Scottish Naturalist Society of Edinburgh to whom specimens of birds and beasts and the feathered and inhabiting the northern regions.

Besides looking after the habits of animals, etc., he is inquiring into the habits and customs of the Indians and has already learned a portion of their language, so that English society may be prepared for the arrival of his specimens.

The magistrates refused to grant the application, because the meeting had continued. A warrant was issued for Harrington's arrest.

The expenditures referred to the budget for this purpose would amount to 1,084,400 florins, and included a sum to be used for 39,000 florins, which were making at the rate of 100 florins.

DEATH OF THE DUCHESS OF SUTHERLAND.

LONDON, 26th November. The death of the Duchess of Sutherland, which occurred to-day, has not upset circles of society talking. It is the end of the first scene of a distressing domestic drama of which her Grace was the victim and her recently married son the hero. The law court, where the case was to be tried after the preliminary inquiry, was joined. Until the end, for years, the Duke and Duchess were exceedingly happy. The Duchess was most of superior Mrs. Lee Hunter having achieved the honour of entertaining Garibaldi in the first London society when the Liberator, wearing a red shirt and buckskin breeches, was surrounded by fair women and great men. The Duke, however, was the giddy son of the pleasure miller at St. John's Wood, which is now reported to have passed into the temporary hands of the Vandebiltts for next year.

Some years ago the Duchess was Mistress of the Robe. Gladstone's Government ended in 1874, and she began to turn Conservative, al most coincident with a social meeting between the Duke and Mrs. Blair, wife of an army officer.

The Duke was as spars as the Duchess was stout and in fact the Duchess was fat. Both ladies were about the same age, say 40, and her hair was streaked with grey. The Duke was fascinated and the lady became his lover. Compensation was offered Mr. Blair, who, instead of accepting, blew his brains out, causing an immense sensation at the time. Divorce proceedings between the Duke and Duchess were stopped partly by the good sense of the Queen, who, probably by a direct suggestion of the Duke's mother. The Duchess bore the depreciation of her husband's society with exemplary resignation, but they never met except on formal occasions.

Meanwhile the Duke spent the autumn, winter, and spring yachting, generally in Southern waters, with Mrs. Blair, whose prudent some thought the convenient presence of the sea, for fear of a social call.

Last winter the Duke, meeting Admiral Sir David Milne and some other intimate friends of the Prince of Wales, invited them to share his yacht for the remainder of his cruise in Indian waters. All went well till one day, when the lady insisted that either she or she should leave the yacht. The result was that Wales' friends were bundled on board, not sorry to quit the service of the Duke in his steamer.

After this the yacht proceeded to Siam, where the lady's brother is the legal adviser of the King. He placed the palace at the Duke's disposal. Here, even, native feelings were outraged by the proceedings of the party, and the yacht was obliged to leave, greatly to the comfort of the royal and the foreign residents.

On the last summer the Prince of Wales wrote to the Duke, without result, for the connection to be severed, as his death had relieved the Duchess's suffering.

Society is anxious to know whether the woman's fascination over the Duke will induce him to marry her. She is very clever. Her family had produced more first-classers at Oxford than any other in England, her father being professor of Civil Disraeli's boat in 1863 when Wales took doctor's degree. All her brothers took high honors, and were able to find a sinecure, stick, scull, and in swimming. The Duke and Mrs. Blair at present are in New York.
